“I Fear We Have Only Awakened a Sleeping Giant”

October 31, 2019

EIRNS--Japanese Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto is said to have uttered words like these after the the Dec. 7, 1941 surprise attack on Pearl Harbor which he had just ordered, after planning for it for almost a year. At least Yamamoto had the intelligence to make that belated judgment. The authors of today’s impeachment-procedures resolution in the House of Representatives are nowhere near as smart as he was.

Tell me: Are our self-proclaimed “elites” really the geniuses they think they are? But wait—aren’t they the exactly the same gang that ran Hillary Clinton’s campaign earlier? The people who still insist, after three years, that they ran it brilliantly? That they didn’t do anything wrong?

Just to make it clearer—what do these geniuses plan to do if the current sorry crop of Democratic presidential candidates just can’t make it, and fails? Why, they intend to run Hillary Clinton all over again, it’s widely reported! And as if that weren’t bad enough already, their number-two choice is probably the only candidate more self-inflated and less electable than Hillary—the crazy billionaire eco-freak Michael Bloomberg, who promises to close down all our coal-mines!

They are confident that because they control the major media and academia, that they effectively control reality by controlling what the citizen sees and hears—and thus believes. But now we have come to a parting of the ways—suddenly this is no longer true at all. (Erich Honecker experienced such a moment once.) There has been a fundamental change in the world, and the citizen senses it unmistakably even if he can’t define or describe it. Americans have deliberately elected a President who glories in defying the globalist and geopolitical axioms. The leaderships of Russia, China, India and other nations are prepared to join with him for common ends. Now, after three years, he has finally been able to fulfill his promise to end the “forever wars.”

And that is only the most visible aspect among many. The whole world is gripped by sudden, unexpected change. The evidence is everywhere.

What is needed to bring us safely to the opposite shore, is leadership which rejects and replaces the failed axioms which have destroyed us. This was the particular area of the late statesman and economist Lyndon LaRouche. In his 2002 writing, “The Historical Individual,” reprinted in the Nov. 1, 2019 Executive Intelligence Review, he said, “The potentially fatal systemic conditions of social-political systems, such as that of the 1964-2002 U.S.A. today, are expressed by fundamental errors of assumption which underlie the way in which a society stumbles, more or less unwittingly, into making its choices of action, and inaction. Sooner or later, the continued toleration of such flawed sets of implied axiomatic assumptions, brings the conflict between society and nature to a condition approaching an existential crisis. It must then, like the U.S.A. today, alter its implied set of axioms, or collapse.”

And further, “The principal cause for the doom of any culture, is that mental disorder typical of popular opinion, which is to assume the validity of any assumptions currently adopted by a learned profession, or religious teaching, or more crudely adopted as generally accepted popular opinion. So, as a foolish class in geometry always returns, directly, or indirectly, to the assumed authority of some set of unquestionable definitions, axioms, and postulates, a foolish people seeks the comforting authority of those same false, axiomatic delusions which, if continued long enough, will send that society plunging into self-inflicted ruin.”

LaRouche’s principles of economics have proven their validity in the accuracy of the roughly a dozen economic forecasts he made over more than 50 years—when all other notable economists failed. Today’s unrolling new mega-financial crisis makes it still more urgent that the principles of LaRouche’s economics replace the principles of university-taught economics, which have now destroyed the United States and the other nations which applied them.

You can be sure that our so-called “elites” are completely out of their depth. And now, with a little effort, today’s House resolution on procedures to impeach the President, can become, as if overnight, their greatest-ever defeat.

Sham Impeachment Inquiry Proceeds;
Up To the Citizens to Stop It

EIRNS—The House voted today 232-196, to continue their sham impeachment proceeding. The vote was absolutely along partisan lines. As will be noted by some, House Speaker Nancy Pelosi once said she would not pursue impeachment if it was not bi-partisan.

New Wall Street Crisis: This Time,
LaRouche’s Policies Must Be Adopted

EIRNS—If you are a senior banking official who attended the IMF/World Bank meetings in Washington last week, you know that the banking system, centered in London and Wall Street, is right now in a worse crisis than anything since the crash of 2008.
